The products we use which fall within the scope of REACH are not chemicals within the meaning of the Regulation (EG no. 1907/2006 version December 2015) but preparations or articles made of several different substances. However, REACH (Title II, Chapter 1, Articles 6 and 7) stipulates that only the substances themselves have to be registered, and not preparations or articles made of those substances.

As a downstream user, the REACH Regulation therefore does not apply to us. We are not subject to the pre-registration and registration obligations resulting from the manufacture and marketing of chemical substances.

Within the meaning of Article 3 Definitions, the products we supply you with are articles and are therefore not chemical substances or preparations. No substances are released from our products when used appropriately, correctly and in a foreseeable manner. They therefore do not need to be registered.

Nonetheless, in the interests of our customers and to ensure strict product safety standards, we monitor compliance with REACH by our suppliers. We therefore require our suppliers to register products covered by the REACH Regulation and to impose the same requirement on their own suppliers.

In accordance with REACH Article 33, we will also inform our customers if any of our products contain ingredients in a concentration of above 0.1% which are classified by the European Chemicals Agency (ECHA) as of particularly high concern or if relevant ingredients will be added to the candidate list of substances (according to article 59). However, we do not currently anticipate that this is likely to be the case.
